Do you want to minimize risk of incidents? Choose Maritime Resource Management (MRM).

MRM is primarily a training programme that combines the latest research with the human factor areas. The key factor to minimize the risk of incidents is by encouraging safe and responsible behavior. The training also instills the benefits of favoring good communication, teamwork, excellence in leadership skills and compliance with standard operating procedures.

How do we attain this?

By increasing participants knowledge about human performance and limitations with the purpose of creating a deeper understanding of what can lead humans into lack of situation awareness and complacency. MRM training focuses on human factor issues and not specific technical tasks.

The training is provided to all levels of officers, both deck and engine. Besides the obvious goals of continuous improvement in safer shipping and a reduced number of accidents/incidents, the training aim to assist developing the skills and knowledge of officers and engineers, and enhance their professional standards.
